Your Stock Opportunity Guide

This workbook helps you identify and understand which companies could benefit from the $10 trillion debt rollover and massive government spending. By working through these questions, you'll develop your own investment watchlist based on the concepts from the video.

Important: This is educational content only. We are NOT telling you to buy any specific stock. Always do your own research and consult with a qualified financial advisor before making any investment decisions.

Part 1: Understanding the Big Picture

💰 Key Fact: The U.S. government pays $981 billion per year just in interest payments. That money flows to banks, financial companies, and bondholders.

The Simple Story

Imagine you borrowed $100 from your friend for a year. When the year is up, you don't have $100 to pay them back. So what do you do? You borrow $100 from another friend to pay back the first loan. That's called "rolling over" the debt.

The U.S. government does this with TRILLIONS of dollars. In 2026, they need to refinance $10 trillion. That's not a disaster—it happens automatically. But here's what matters for YOU: The government is now paying way more in interest, and that creates opportunities in specific stocks.

Question 1: Before watching the video, were you aware that the government "rolls over" debt instead of paying it off? How does this change your understanding of government spending?

Question 2: The video mentioned specific sectors that benefit from government spending. Which sector surprised you the most and why?

Part 2: Defense Stocks - The Obvious Winners

> 🚀 Key Fact: U.S. defense spending is over $850 billion per year and GROWING. These are multi-year contracts that are already locked in.

Why Defense Wins

The government has to spend on defense no matter what. These contracts are signed for YEARS in advance. Whether the economy is good or bad, whether debt is high or low, defense contractors get paid.

Defense Stocks Mentioned in Video:

📊 LMT - Lockheed Martin (F-35 jets, missiles)
📊 NOC - Northrop Grumman (B-21 bomber)
📊 RTX - Raytheon Technologies (missiles, radar)
📊 PLTR - Palantir (government AI & data)
📊 HII - Huntington Ingalls (shipbuilding - Trump announcement)

Defense ETFs (Easy Diversification):

📊 ITA - Aerospace & Defense ETF
📊 PPA - Aerospace & Defense ETF
📊 XAR - Aerospace & Defense ETF (equal-weighted)

Question 3: Which of the defense stocks above would you research first, and why? (Think about what you know about these companies or what interests you)

Question 4: Do you think buying an ETF (like ITA) or individual stocks (like LMT) makes more sense for your situation? Why?

Part 3: Infrastructure & Government Tech

🏗️ Key Fact: The $1.2 trillion infrastructure bill is STILL rolling out. That money is flowing to construction, materials, and tech companies over the next 5-10 years.

Infrastructure Stocks:

📊 CAT - Caterpillar (construction equipment)
📊 VMC - Vulcan Materials (stone, gravel, asphalt)
📊 MLM - Martin Marietta (construction materials)

Infrastructure ETFs:

📊 PAVE - Infrastructure Development ETF
📊 IFRA - Infrastructure ETF

Government Tech Stocks:

📊 PLTR - Palantir (AI for government)
📊 MSFT - Microsoft (Azure cloud, Office 365)
📊 AMZN - Amazon (AWS cloud for government)
📊 BAH - Booz Allen Hamilton (98% government revenue)
📊 CRWD - Crowdstrike (cybersecurity)
📊 PANW - Palo Alto Networks (cybersecurity)

Cybersecurity ETF:

📊 CIBR - Cybersecurity ETF

Question 5: Look at the infrastructure stocks above. Can you think of any infrastructure projects in your state or city that might benefit these companies?

Part 4: Financials, Dividends & Real Assets

Financial Stocks (Banks Love Higher Rates)

When interest rates go up, banks make MORE money. They charge higher rates on loans and pay less on deposits. That's called "net interest margin" and it's been expanding like crazy.

Financial Stocks:

📊 JPM - JPMorgan Chase (profits up 30%+ since rates rose)
📊 BAC - Bank of America (very rate-sensitive)
📊 MS - Morgan Stanley (wealth management)
📊 BLK - BlackRock (asset manager, manages trillions)

Financial ETFs:

📊 KBE - Bank ETF
📊 XLF - Financial Sector ETF (banks + insurance + asset managers)

Dividend Aristocrats (Stability & Income)

These are companies that have increased their dividends for 25+ years straight. Through recessions, wars, everything. They're boring, but they're reliable.

Dividend Aristocrat Examples:

📊 JNJ - Johnson & Johnson (healthcare, 60+ years)
📊 PG - Procter & Gamble (toothpaste, diapers, soap)
📊 KO - Coca-Cola (global brand, pricing power)

Dividend Aristocrat ETF:

📊 NOBL - Dividend Aristocrats ETF (automatically rebalances)

Real Assets (Inflation Protection)

If inflation comes back (which it might with all this government spending), real assets like energy, gold, and commodities tend to hold their value.

Real Asset Stocks:

📊 XOM - Exxon (energy, dividends, buybacks)
📊 CVX - Chevron (energy)
📊 FCX - Freeport-McMoRan (copper)
📊 NEM - Newmont (gold)

Real Asset ETFs:

📊 DBC - Commodities ETF
📊 GLD - Gold ETF (5-10% as insurance)

Question 6: Based on what you learned, which sector appeals to you most: Defense, Infrastructure, Tech, Financials, Dividends, or Real Assets? Why?

Question 7: The video suggested a portfolio allocation (Defense 10-15%, Infrastructure 5-10%, etc.). Do you think this makes sense for your personal situation, or would you adjust it? How?

Part 5: Your Action Plan

🎯 Remember: This isn't about buying everything at once. It's about building a watchlist, doing your research, and positioning yourself BEFORE everyone else figures it out.

The All-Scenario Strategy

The smart play is building a portfolio that WINS in multiple scenarios:

- If rates stay high: Financials and dividend payers win
- If rates drop: Growth stocks and infrastructure win
- If inflation spikes: Real assets and defense win

Suggested Allocation from Video

- ☐ Defense & Government Spending: 10-15% of portfolio
- ☐ Infrastructure: 5-10%
- ☐ Government Tech: 5-10%
- ☐ Financials: 10-15%
- ☐ Dividend Aristocrats: 15-20%
- ☐ Real Assets / Inflation Hedges: 5-10%
- ☐ Cash (for opportunities): 10-15%

⚠️ Critical Reminder: This is NOT financial advice. These are educational examples. Do your own research. Talk to a financial advisor. Never invest money you can't afford to lose.

Question 8: Based on this video, write down 3-5 specific stock tickers or ETFs you want to research further:

Question 9: What's ONE action you will take in the next 7 days based on what you learned? (Examples: Research LMT earnings, open a brokerage account, talk to a financial advisor, watch my portfolio allocation)

Question 10: The video emphasized "position yourself BEFORE everyone else panics." What does this mean to you personally? How can you apply this principle?
